The purpose of the Moore Scholars program is to develop individuals who possess the knowledge and skills to lead, the commitment to act and the courage and resilience to initiate change in schools and communities so that every child has the opportunity to achieve academic success.

What To Expect

Students in the Moore Scholars LLC are provided with an innovative set of immersive experiences, helping them to develop the flexibility and perspectives necessary to work successfully with schools and communities that are comprised of ethnic, racial, linguistic, socioeconomic and cultural diversity. These experiences allow scholars to reflect on and develop practices that address social justice issues as they relate to access, opportunity and equity in order to ensure that all children can receive a quality education.

The program offers a unique cohort-based approach for undergraduate students striving to become extraordinary educators. Scholars engage in weekly co-curricular experiences throughout the regular academic year, with their Moore Scholars experience culminating each year in a highly immersive, sustained summer project that allows them to engage with students, schools and communities all over the state of South Carolina during the summers.

Did You Know?

Moore Scholars is a fairly new initiative in the Eugene T. Moore School of Education. The program officially started during the 2013-2014 academic year, when Cohort A arrived on campus. Cohorts A and B have worked or are currently working with K-12 students all over South Carolina in a variety of projects. The students’ schools include Estill High School, West Side Elementary School, the Tamassee DAR School, Walhalla Middle School and Walhalla High School.

Student Perspective

“It is so incredible that all of the campers...are researching ways to improve society and the world. These children have the potential to be the future leaders of society and inspirations to many. All they need is someone to show them that they have the ability to succeed. The theme quote for the camp from Anne Frank is incredibly fitting for these children. It reads as follows: ‘How wonderful it is that nobody need wait a single moment before starting to improve the world.’”

– Reagan Bachour, Cohort A
